

Christine Miller – BA (Hons) Business, University of Sussex

LOT Director and Company Secretary

Christine has spent most of her career in the field of education, working with the UK and overseas governments to provide international professional development for teachers. She also served as a school governor for a number of years, which provided her with a broader insight into the myriad ways in which students learn.

Christine is a great advocate for programmes such as LOT, that enable students to reach their goals and she has no doubt about the heights that students can achieve when given that extra support – taking them out of their comfort zone and challenging the limitations that some students place on themselves. In her own words, Christine highlights that “LOT is committed to enhancing the educational life chances of students. Through LOT, students have been exposed to a range of educational and culture opportunities e.g. business and education programmes in the United States through the National Black MBA; visits to the National Theatre to view and critique a number of plays and opportunities to listen to and discuss current economic and other business issues with City Traders”.

Christine’s wide experience and managerial skills have been put to excellent use by providing LOT with the practical support required to enable it to operate as an efficient company.
